

STEVE FRAMPTON
GRAPHIC DESIGNER

DESIGN FOR GOOD MEASURE

No bugs, no life!

I am a freelance graphic designer having previously worked as a designer/studio manager in the public relations and creative industry for 15 years. My work includes graphic design for print, branding, product packaging, POS, websites, exhibitions, events, PR news media/content along with video production and editing.

For those who are discriminated against because of their race, gender or status, for those who are imprisoned because of their ideas and beliefs, for those who get caught up in the crossfire of armed hostilities, for those who are made to endure ceaseless torture and humiliation for crimes they did not commit, for those who face the death penalty even though they are completely innocent, for those abducted from their families and recruited into armed forces and militia, for those who are beaten black and blue by their partners in their own homes, for those people in the many countries all over the world suffering violence, injustice and abuse, there is a light at the end of the tunnel.

Fanatical emphasis was placed on the manufacture of the concrete for the Hoover Dam. Exact proportions of all of the ingredients for the concrete were used. Due to the immensity of the project, variations in quality simply could not be risked.

Precision was vital to the construction of the Channel Tunnel. Without the exactness of the engineers, the breakthrough on the 1st December 1990, when the British and French met below the surface of the English Channel, wouldn't have happened.

Perhaps one of the officinado's best kept secrets, Nektar's contribution over the last 35 years has rightly earned them a place in any 'Progressive Rock Hall of Fame'. However, Nektar are much more than a 'Prog Legend', their brand is simply unique. Despite a rich legacy of gold albums of innovative composition, live performance and visual recordings to their credit, Nektar's history appeared to have been written when the band split in the Eighties. Despite attaining the flame, the Nektar light, it seemed, was out....

In the year 2000, The New Millennium witnessed a long overdue tour featuring the classic Nektar line up, to rave reviews and overwhelming receptions. The light that we thought was out, has been kept aglow by loyal fans across the globe. Now back to their rediscovered energy and popularity, a re-born Nektar take their music where it belongs.... to a growing number of fans around the world. LIVE and PURE.

A photograph showing the Space Shuttle Columbia being mated to the Space Station. The shuttle is on the right, with its white thermal protection tiles and orange external tank visible. The Space Station's complex structure, including solar panel arrays and structural beams, is on the left. The shuttle is being moved by a large crane or gantry.

The space shuttle was covered with Silica tiles, which could withstand the extreme 1650°C temperatures on re-entry to Earth. Silica's low heat conduction is so effective that tiles can be held with bare hands by the edges whilst still red hot.

The remarkable Falkirk Wheel is the only fully rotating boat lift in the world. Based on Archimedes' principle and the law of buoyancy, it uses two gondolas to raise canal boats to a height of 24 metres in just 15 minutes, replacing the preceding staircase of 11 locks that originally linked the two canals that took almost a day to pass.

A sepia-toned photograph showing a construction worker in a hard hat and work clothes, positioned on a large wooden beam. The worker is leaning forward, possibly inspecting or working on a large, thick cable that runs diagonally across the frame. The background shows a hazy, mountainous landscape. The overall tone is historical and industrial.

Thousands of individual quarter-inch wires created the two huge galvanised cables forming the great spine of the Golden Gate Bridge. Accuracy of these main cables was essential to the support and strength of the gigantic suspension system.
